QUEBEC IN HISTORY

Arnold's Expedition—His Summons to Quebec—Junction with Montgomery—The Assault and Repulse—Arnold Wounded and Morgan Captured—Death of Montgomery

[Written for the Whig and Courier.]

The walled city of Quebec has passed through five sieges (1629—1690—1759—1760—1775) yet none were pushed with more spirit, and perhaps apparent prospect of success, than the blockade of the city by the two armies, sent in the autumn of 1775, under the advice of George Washington.

One detachment from Cambridge which was to march against Quebec by the way of the Kennebec River was commanded by Benedict Arnold

He had correspondents in the city, having "in the course of his checkered life traded in horses between that place and the West Indies," Bancroft says of him, 'In person he was short of stature and of florid complexion, his broad, compact frame displayed strong animal nature and power of endurance, he was complaisant and persuasive in his manner, daringly and desperately brave, avaricious and profuse, grasping but not sordid, sanguinely hopeful, of restless activity, intelligent and enterprising'"

His command consisted of ten companies of New England infantry, three companies of riflemen, two from Pennsylvania and one from Virginia, commanded by Capt. Daniel Morgan, in all about eleven hundred men

Aaron Burr then only nineteen years of age, was a volunteer, carrying musket and knapsack. Boats and provisions having been collected, the detachment, on the evening of the 30th of Sept. 1775, marched to Medford. On the 19th they sailed from Newburyport, and on the 20th were borne into the Kennebec After landing upon the east side of the river, on the site of Augusta, Arnold sent seven men forward at once to discover the shortest carrying place from the Kennebec to the Dead River

Then he divided his command into four divisions On the 25th of Sept Morgan with his riflemen were ordered forward to clear the path, and Greene and Bigelow with three companies followed on the 26th, Meigs with four companies moving on the 27th and Col. Enos closing up the rear with three companies the day after

Each division took provisions for forty five days, which were in bateaux which they were obliged to force along against a rapid current, often in the water waist deep, hauling their boats. The trials and perils of this march seem never to have been fully comprehended, if told Their course was up the swift Kennebec, "they conveyed arms and stores through the thick woods, now rowing, now dragging their boats, now bearing them on their shoulders round rapids and cataracts, across morasses, over craggy highlands"

We are told how they worked at the great carrying place, between the Kennebec and Dead River,—that Col. Enos the second in command not only took back the sick, but three hundred men under him to Norridgewock, and of its disheartening effects,—of the eighty-three miles on the Dead River with seventeen falls "large enough to make portages necessary"

On the 20th of October some of the party encamped upon the high land which divides the waters of St. Lawrence and the Atlantic.

As they advanced, their suffering increased, some were barefoot, their clothes torn and their bodies lacerated with thorns, drenched with the cold storms, continually crossing streams whose banks were full, and over swamps covered with white moss, which frequently caused them to sink deep in the wet turf. Nights they were without shelter or bed, save wet boughs. "Many a soldier struggling to march on, would sink down stiffening with cold and death."

An invalid would be left behind with a comrade to hunt for a jay or a squirrel, to hear his last word and watch his expiring breath, with orders to join the main body when his work was finished.

The men were obliged to eat their faithful dogs and chew their cartridge boxes, and anything which would relieve the gnawing of hunger. "They had hauled their barges nearly all of the way, for one hundred and eighty miles, carried them on their shoulders nearly forty miles, through hideous woods and mountains, often knee deep in the mire, over swamps and bogs." They had been deserted by three hundred of the eleven hundred, enfeebled by sickness and with poor arms and little ammunition, without a single cannon, still this band of men inspired by the love of liberty and their country, pushed on, persevering in their purpose to appear before a citadel "the strongest in North America" and to be held to the last by the English officers.

Carrying again to Lake Megantic the source of the Chaudiere River, the advance under Arnold came near being lost on that swift river.

An emissary sent in advance caused a party of French Canadians to meet these starving soldiers on the second day of November with two horses, driving before them five oxen, at which, these famishing men were "frantic with delight and fired a salute for joy."

On the 4th of November they reached a settlement; the sick were cared for, as fast as brought in, and made as comfortable as possible. Passing to the 13th of November, Arnold with the aid of canoes carrying less than one hundred at a time, and by crossing the St. Lawrence three several times before day break, on the morning of the 14th had landed all but one hundred and fifty of his party at Wolf's cove and climed the oblique path to the Plains of Abraham'

'Wolf had come with a well appointed army, commanding the river with a fleet, they, in frail bark canoes," numbering less than seven hundred men, with only muskets, and those muskets so damaged that one hundred were unfit for use.

"Wolf had unlimited stores and ammunition, Arnold with few stores, spoiled cartridges and a little damaged powder"

Arnold, with a flag, demanded the surrender of the city that evening, but the flag was not received and the British would not come out of the walls, as did the French under Montcalm After a strict examination of the ammunition boxes, it was found that only five rounds were on hand to each man, and Arnold, thinking it not prudent to risk a battle, on the 19th retired eight leagues above Quebec, where they awaited the orders of Gen Montgomery who was moving down from Montreal and as commander in chief of all troops

In this communication no attempt will be made to give an account of Gen Richard Montgomery's march on Quebec, prior to his junction with Gen Arnold, but it will be remembered that he was beset with many difficulties On the 3d day of December, Montgomery joined Arnold at Point aux Trembles, with about three hundred men, some artillery, and provisions brought down the St. Lawrence by three armed schooners "This American army composed of less than one thousand troops and a volunteer regiment of about two hundred Canadians appeared before Quebec in mid winter, to take the strongest fortified city in America, defended by more than two hundred cannon of heavy metal, and a garrison of twice the number of the besiegers."

The first act of Montgomery was to demand the surrender of the city, but his flag was not received On the 6th of December he addressed an "extravagant and menacing letter to Carleton," which was sent into the city by a woman, but Carleton's military rule imprisoned all messengers, and then drummed them out of town Montgomery failed in every attempt to communicate with the commander, or the habitans of the city

A battery was begun near St John's gate on the heights of Abraham, and by dint of excessive labor a breastwork was thrown up. It was largely formed of snow over which water was thrown until thoroughly frozen

From the "Ice Battery" Capt Lamb opened his field pieces, but they were too light to be effective The heavy fire from the walls of Quebec, had torn through the brittle ramparts of this 'Ice Battery" and paid back with good interest the annoyance which it had occasioned

Montgomery visited this battery, and perceiving its insufficiency, gave Lamb orders to leave it whenever he should think proper, which he did after dark, securing all of his guns.

Thus failing to disturb the enemy, and the constant refusal of Carleton to come out of the walls and attempt to drive away the besiegers convinced Montgomery in his purpose

"To the storming we must come at last" he said On the evening of the 16th he called a council of the commissioned officers of Arnold's command and a large majority voted for making an assault, as soon as bayonets, hatchets and hand grenades could be provided'

As the time for assault drew near, three captains in Arnold's command created dissension and showed a mutinous dissatisfaction to the service" Montgomery repaired to their quarters and gave them leave to stand aside "He would compel none, he wanted with him no persons who went with reluctance' The officers returned to their duty, but Montgomery was by this incident hurried into the resolution of attack as the term of enlistment would expire the first day of January

Christmas evening he reviewed Arnold's battalion and addressed them with spirit A council of war agreed on a night attack on the lower town. For the following days the troops were in readiness at a moment's warning. Ladders had been provided and Montgomery wanted for a favorable night.

The movements of Carleton gave certain signs that deserters had revealed his plans, therefore it was necessary to make some change.

Carleton's officers were watchful, and all not on duty slept in their clothes. December 26th "was clear and so cold that no man could handle his arms for scale a wall" The 27th was hazy, and the troops were put in motion; "but as the sky soon cleared up, the General, who was tender of their lives, called them back" to wait for a favorable night, that is, "for a night of clouds and darkness with storm of wind and snow."

Not until the 30th, did the wished for storm arrive, it was a furious snow storm Troops were ordered to be ready, and that they might recognize one another, each soldier wore in his cap a piece of white paper, on which some of them wrote: "Liberty or Death."

His troops were divided into four detachments. Col. Livingston was to attract attention before St. John's gate with the Canadian regiment numbering less than two hundred, while Major Brown, a personal enemy of Arnold's, was to feign an attack on the works at Cape Diamond, on the high land, to conceal the movement from the heights to Wolf's cove, of about three hundred New York troops under the gallant Montgomery; at the proper time, Brown was to fire rockets as a signal for attack upon all points. These rockets were let off, as is apt to be the case, before all of the troops had reached their fighting ground, and gave notice to the garrison of the intended assault.

On the north west side Arnold led the forlorn hope, which consisted of twice as many soldiers as followed Montgomery. The plan of assault was for Arnold to carry the barriers from the north, and Montgomery from the south along the bank of the river, and when united at the lower end of Mountain street, to force Prescott's barrier and push on into "upper town" and capture the city. Two feint attacks on the west side failed to distract the attention of the enemy, and "the bells were rung, and the drums beat a general alarm, and the cannon began to play." After descending the heights Montgomery led his men forward on the shore of Cape Diamond.

"It was a narrow defile falling away to the river precipitously on one side, and shutin by the scarped rock, and overhanging cliff on the other, so that not more than five or six persons could walk abreast." The wind blew furiously in their faces with cutting hail which the eyes could not withstand, "their constant step wore the frozen snow into little lumps of ice; so that the men were fatigued by their struggles not to fall, and they could not keep their arms dry" The rockets sent up by Brown more than half an hour too soon caused the general with his aids-de-camps, Macpherson and Burr, to push on with the front, composed of Cheeseman's company and Mott's, and arrived half an hour before day at the first barrier with guides and carpenters

Montgomery and Cheeseman were the first to enter this undefended barrier, passing between the rock and the picket which the carpenters began to saw and wrench away"

Despatching a messenger back to hurry up the troops, Montgomery went forward for observation. A house built of logs and extending on the south nearly to the river, with loopholes for musketry, and a battery of two three-pounders intercepted the passage

It was held by a party of fifty men, thirty Canadians under Clabot and Picard, eight British militiamen under Coffin with nine British cannon to work the guns under Capt Barnesfore

The approach of Montgomery was seen by the guard by aid of lanterns placed by the garrison on the wall and the guard remained so silent that Montgomery, after he had listened, thought the enemy not on the alert. Waiting until about sixty men had come up he exclaimed, 'Men of New York, you will not fear to follow where your general leads' push on, brave boys, Quebec is ours!"

They rushed forward at double quick time to carry the battery

'As he appeared on a little rising in the ground, at a distance of forty yards from the mouths of the cannon, which were loaded with grape shot Barnesfare discharged them with deadly aim'

'Montgomery, his aid Macpherson, the young and gallant Cheesman and ten others, instantly fell dead, Montgomery with three wounds. Mott was eager to go forward, but Campbell who assumed command, encounters the reproach of ordering a retreat" and thus ended this part of the plan

Arnold led his men along the St Charles, this path which had been narrowed by masses of ice thrown up from the river might have been raked every inch of it with grape shot by the battery which it commanded As they reached Palace Gate, the artillery opened upon them but the Americans ran along in single file, holding down their heads on account of the storm and protecting their guns with their coats

Capt Lamb followed with a field piece on a sled, this was abandoned but he and his men took part in the fight

The first opposition was at the Sault-au-Matelot street, here is a jutting rock which left little space between the river beach and precipice

In leading the forlorn hope at this barricade, Arnold was severely wounded in the leg Morgan's men, who formed the advance, rushed forward to the port holes and fired into them and Morgan himself was first to mount the barrier by ladder followed by his men who took the captain and guard prisoner They were soon joined by Greene Bigelow and Meigs

Morgan now pushed on to the second barrier, near the eastern extremity of Sault au Matelot street

He cheered on his riflemen with a voice "louder than the northeast gale' but though Heth and Porterfield and a few others in the front ranks attended the scaling ladders it was only to see on the other side rows of troops prepared to receive them on hedges of bayonets if they had leaped down'

Many Americans fell here, at the last moment one gunner ran back linstock in hand, to give one more shot Capt Lamb snapped a fusee at him It missed fire the cannon was discharged and Lamb wounded, was borne off senseless with the loss of part of the cheek bone The town seemed now open and Morgan was prepared to enter it with his riflemen He stationed Capt. Dearborn at Palace Gate which opens into the defile from upper town By this time Carleton could give his whole attention to the few hundred men under Morgan and the fire from the houses and walls became so severe that they took possession of a stone house from whence they continued their fire Hendricks was killed here while aiming his rifle.

Carleton ordered a sally from Palace Gate which captured Dearborn's command Learning of the death of Montgomery and hemmed in on all sides, Morgan proposed to cut their way out, but this was not thought practicable, and after maintaining the struggle till the last hope was gone, at ten o'clock they surrendered.

Thus Morgan, Meigs, Greene, Hendricks and the hardy men who had braved the wilderness with a purpose of conquest, "made for themselves a heroic name but found their way only to death and prison."

The loss of the British was one officer and eighteen men that of the Americans, 60 killed and wounded, about one hundred in prisoners four hundred and twenty six, of that number forty four were wounded officers and soldiers.

When the battle was over at a place now known as Pres-de-Ville, the bodies of thirteen were found.

Bancroft says "The body of Cheeseman, whose career had been but a gallant one, had fallen over the rocks. In the pathway lay Macpherson, a youth as spotless as the new fallen snow which was his winding sheet, full of genius for war lovely in temper, honored by the affection and confidence of his chief, dear to the army, leaving no his like behind him."

"There, too, by his side lay Richard Montgomery, on the spot where he fell At his death he was in the first month of his fortieth year. He was tall and slender, well limbed, of a graceful address and a strong and active frame. He could endure fatigue, and all changes and severities of climate. His judgment was cool, though he kindled in action, imparting confidence and sympathetic courage Never negligent of duty, never avoiding danger, discriminating and energetic, he had the power of conducting freemen by their voluntary love and esteem. An experienced soldier, he was also well versed in letters, particularly in natural science. In private life he was a good husband, brother and son, an amiable and faithful friend; The rectitude of his heart shone forth in his actions which were habitually and unaffectedly directed by a nice moral sense He overcame difficulties which others shunned to encounter Foes and friends paid tribute to this worth

Above and upon the opposite rock has been placed an inscription commemorating the event with the words — Montgomery fell

Let it ever be remembered that Carleton treated his prisoners in a humane and generous manner caring for the dead and wounded

Arnold wounded and disabled dragging one foot after the other was assisted to the general hospital where having been deposited on a bed, awaiting the result of these assault he wrote a letter to General Wooster at Montreal When told of the fate of his own command under Morgan he was advised to retreat to a more distant scene from the British he said but not so fast that if an enemy sought to cover, he would blow out his brains with his pistols which he had deposited near him Happy for him that he too found soldiers and pistols to give both his will of Quebec that his name, like that of Montgomery's might have been free from and not [illegible] traitor

General Morgan was exchanged during the year 1776 and in many other fields battle, made himself famous with his regiment of riflemen and was made General during the war

He was a member of Congress after the year 1792 is buried at Winchester Virginia, where he resided long after doing the late war

The length of this communication will not allow me to write of the natural beauty of this famous city of Quebec its places of interest, the falls of Montmorency its walls its story and picture sque scenery, all of which should attract every American tourist

WEDNESDAY, JUNE 18, 1879.

REPUBLICAN CAUCUSES.

The Republican voters of the City of Bangor are requested to meet at the usual places of Ward Meetings on FRIDAY EVENING, June 20th, at 7½ o'clock, to select four delegates from each Ward, to attend the State Convention to be held in Norombega Hall Thursday, June 26th, 1879.

The delegates selected to attend the Convention will meet at the Council Room, City Hall, at 8 o'clock P. M., after the adjournment of the Ward Caucuses, to select one delegate at large.

By order of the Republican City Committee.
J. W. MILLIKEN, Chairman.
Bangor, June 13th, 1879.

A Republican State Convention

WILL BE HELD IN

NOROMBEGA HALL, BANGOR,

Thursday, June 26, 1879,

at 11 o'clock A. M.,

for the purpose of nominating a candidate for Governor, and for transacting whatever business may properly come before it.

The basis of representation will be one delegate for each city, town and plantation, and an additional delegate for every seventy-five votes cast for the Republican candidate for Governor in 1876. A majority fraction will be entitled to a delegate.

The State Committee will be in session the evening preceding and at 9 o'clock the morning of the Convention, to receive the credentials of delegates.

In selecting the Delegates the Republicans are urged to assemble in full numbers and to invoke the aid and co-operation of all voters who are willing to unite with them to the following ends:

1. To maintain the power and prestige of the Union against all attempts to subvert or oppose its just authority, and to insist that the Government of the United States shall be controlled by loyal men.

2. To discountenance and reprobate the treasonable and revolutionary course of the Democrats in Congress, who threaten to cripple and destroy the functions of the Government if Constitutionally prevented from enacting their partisan measures into Law.

3. To uphold the right of the United States to enforce its own laws wherever they are to operate, and to frown down and put down the dangerous heresy of the States Right secessionists who have already plunged the country into one bloody war, and who are now attempting to control the Government of the Union with the same measures that preceded the rebellion of 1861.

4. To insist upon free elections—not only free from National military interference, which no one desires, but also free from the interference and violence of so-called State militia and the assassins who with deadly weapons have seized the polls in many of the Southern States, driving innocent and defenceless voters from the ballot-box and making a mockery of elections, which war upon free suffrage has been made a distinct political issue by every Democrat in the Senate and House voting against a measure designed to prevent and suppress it.

5. To uphold the financial credit of the Government and to assure to the people of all sections a sound currency, equivalent to coin at all times and in all places, and redeemable in coin. And to this end to oppose all distracting, repudiating and mischievous efforts against the peace, welfare and industrial prosperity of the People.

6. In these aims and purposes all citizens of Maine are invited to unite, that the hands of the President and of the Republican minority in both branches of Congress may be strengthened in the efforts to uphold the honor of the Government and the just authority of National Law.

By order of the Republican State Committee,
GEORGE C. WING, C. A. BOUTELLE, FRED N. DOW, } Sub-Committee.
J. O. SMITH, Secretary.

There is less talk among Democratic leaders about a Presidential candidate. That's because the prospects of electing a Democratic candidate have gradually waned.

The last threat of the Revolutionists is this: "Leading Democrats, referring to the report that the President will call another extra session in the event of the failure of the Judicial bill, say that it is one thing to call and another to insure obedience to a summons, and intimate that a quorum of Congress could not be secured."

The latest rumor about Thurman is that he has entered into a conspiracy with Tilden for the defeat of Ewing and the return of himself to the Senate. To do this a Democratic Legislature will be elected if possible, and the Governorship allowed to go to the Republicans. Thurman is to promise as a condition of Tilden's aid, that he will not be a candidate for the Presidency. This all lacks substance. Tilden has no need to enter into an alliance with anybody for the defeat of Ewing. All he has to do is to refuse to tap the barrel for him and his defeat will come in the natural course of events.—Tribune.

"Perley" telegraphs the Boston Journal that additional amendments have been proposed to the Legislative bill by the House committee, the most notable of which is the proposition to give members of Congress their customary stationery allowance of one hundred and twenty-five dollars each, which they are accustomed to draw for regular sessions, but which they have no authority to obtain for the extra session. The Democratic majority has been very careful to see to it that their own salaries and little perquisites do not fail, although the Federal Courts and other branches of the Governmental machinery are to be permitted to stop.

A debate which took place in the English House of Lords a fortnight or so ago, on the fire defenses of the City of London, brought to light certain facts which seriously shake the faith of many Americans who have hitherto supposed that the Fire Department of the metropolis of Great Britain was an exceptionally efficient one. The subject was brought up by Lord Granville, who said his attention had been drawn to the matter by the great want of promptitude displayed by the municipal authorities in putting out a fire which occurred in his residence. This unexpected backwardness had led him into making an investigation, in which he was assisted by one or two Parliamentary reports covering the same ground, one as late as 1877. He thoroughly agreed with the conclusions reached by the Parliamentary investigators, that an improved system was imperatively demanded. The main difficulties to be overcome were the smallness of the force making up the Fire Brigade, its slowness in arriving at the scene of a fire, and the uncertainty that then existed of a water-supply being obtainable. The London Fire Department has in its employ 400 men, about one-half as many as they have in New York, though the territory which they have to cover is greatly in excess of that protected by this force. For this reason the companies are widely scattered, and as the system of giving alarms is less reliable than ours, quite a "space of time must elapse before an engine can be taken to the burning building. But, when once there, an insuperable obstacle frequently arises in the absence of the "Turncock," who lets the water needed by the engines pass into the hydrants. There are eight private companies that supply London with water, and when an alarm of fire comes in, the employes of these are directed to respond, and turn on the water required for the use of the fire-engines, if a demand is made for it. But a delay on the part of one of these men may be followed by serious results, and the peril of divided authority is one which it is highly imprudent to continue. In the progress of the debate, it was asserted that the proportionate fire loss in the course of a year was three times larger in London than in Manchester and other large towns, and that though London had about the same number of inhabitants as the whole of Scotland, her fire department was inferior in size and equipment to that of the City of Glasgow. In spite of this showing, there is little reason for thinking that a speedy improvement will be made, for the members of the Ministry professed to be unable to take up so serious a question at the present time. It may be that London will escape a sweeping fire in the years that must pass before a reform can take place, but this will be largely due to good luck. The buildings are well constructed, but they contain, just as American warehouses do, immense stocks of goods, which, when once on fire, create a conflagration very difficult to suppress or even control.

The recent outbreak of incendiarism in Russia is attributed by the St. Petersburg correspondent of the Times (London) to small but determined bands of Nihilists. Certainly the recent capture of two persons near Kiev with Orsini bombs, a quantity of compressed gun-cotton in small pots, fuses and other suspicious material in their lodgings, is very good testimony of the fact. The great fire at Orenburg was foretold by proclamations distributed in the town the day before, and a panic has since been caused in Samara and other places by similar threatening announcements. A great many arrests have been made on suspicion at Orenburgh, Perm, Irbit and Uralsk. At Perm there have been no fewer than eight different large fires within five days. Besides conflagrations in these and other large towns, there are daily reports of villages burned to the ground coming from all parts of the interior. It must not be thought, however, that these are all, or even perhaps in great part, the action of revolutionary incendiaries; for a very large number of fires, breaking out as soon as the hot weather sets in, is a yearly occurrence in Russia, where the constructions of wood, especially in the villages, the general carelessness, and the lack of good fire-extinguishing apparatus, are the principal causes of hundreds of habitations being so often swallowed up by the flames before they can be got under control.

A Washington special says that the House Committee on Elections, at its meeting Monday morning, practically decided that the Iowa members are to retain their seats. There are, however, to be four separate reports from the committee, and the case, when it is presented for argument, will probably be as complicated as any election case that has ever been discussed. Springer of Illinois, chairman of the committee, stands alone in the opinion that neither the October nor the November elections were valid, and that there was no election. He will present the report containing those views. Colerick is of opinion that the November election was proper, and will write the report representing that branch of the committee. Keifer thinks that the October election was proper, and will submit a report which the Republicans will sign. Phister, a Democrat, also believes that the October election was proper, but arrives at it from different reasons than Keifer does. Phister places his decision as to the validity of the October election on the ground of State right. These several reports will probably not be submitted to the House for argument at this session.

The Des Moines Register speaks in enthusiastic terms of the Iowa Republican Convention, the ticket, and the platform, and adds:

The spirit of the convention was excellent. Everything was radical. It was a stalwart convention. It had none of the dry-rot of conservatism or policy about it, either in its speeches or proceedings, as it has none in its platform. The policy men of two years ago and one year ago were among the most radical yesterday, and all the leading policy editors of 1877 were upon the platform committee and helped to make a platform far more stalwart and implacable than even the stalwarts and implacables themselves proposed two years ago. There were no policy men in the convention that day; there are no longer any policy men in Iowa. The party is itself again, with no one in its ranks now who wishes to apologize for its past or to make excuses for its present.

Final Notice to the Holders of Bonds to the Northern Pacific Railroad Company

Under the Plan of Reorganization, ratified by the decree of the Court, the time in which Bondholders should be allowed to participate in the benefits of the Plan, by the conversion of Bonds into Preferred Stock, was left to the discretion of the Purchasing Committee. More than three years having passed since this right was given, and more than nine-tenths of the Bondholders having converted their Bonds, the Committee desirous of closing their labors, hereby give notice that the right of converting Bonds and receiving Preferred Stock will terminate on the 30th day of June, 1879.

Circulars giving information how the conversion is made can be had at the office of the Northern Pacific R. R. Co., No. 23 Fifth avenue, New York.

The original stock will be exchanged for stock under the Plan up to the same time.

MAINE NEWS.

THE ROCKLAND MURDERER.

CAPTURED AT ISLESBORO

Returned to Rockland.

His Story of the Murder, Escape and His Flight Through the Country.

ROCKLAND, June 17. Samuel D. Haynes, the murderer of James P. Robbins, was captured this morning at Islesboro and brought to this city. Haynes stole a new boat at the Northport camp ground in which he crossed to Islesboro, landing near Dark Harbor on the east side of the Island yesterday morning. Constable Isaiah Boardman was setting salmon nets about seven a. m., and saw Haynes and spoke to him but did not know him. In the middle of the afternoon Haynes went to the house of C. C. Hatch and asked for shelter. Mrs. Hatch was the only person at home. She admitted him and the conversation which ensued strongly excited her suspicions, news of the murder being known on the Island. He took a revolver from his pocket while there and shortly after went away.

D. Hatch and Myron Pendleton, two young men who had heard of the visit to Hatch's house, went in search of the man shortly after 6 p. m., and seeing smoke went to a place along the shore, and found Haynes under a sort of shelter tent eating supper. They pretended to be in search of a cow and had a conversation with him which confirmed their suspicions. They subsequently, notified Capt. Ephraim Pendleton, Constable Isaiah Boardman, and Mr. D. H. Hatch, and at two a. m., the five started well armed to capture Haynes. Arriving near the spot they waited till after daylight, when they went to Haynes' tent, found him eating breakfast, and took him in custody, Constable Boardman making the arrest. Haynes made no resistance and gave up his revolver. They then took him in a large boat to Camden, where he was fully identified. Up to this time he denied that he was Haynes, but afterwards owned up and talked freely. When told that Robbins was dead he said "That is too d—d bad. I'm sorry."

From Camden he was brought directly here. Before arrival the boat was boarded by Deputy Sheriff Shepherd, of Camden to whom Capt. Pendleton surrendered the prisoner. The steamer Firefly was sent out by Mayor Lovejoy with a corps of special officers and towed in the sloop Nathalie" having Haynes and his captors on board. They landed at Commercial Wharf where an immense crowd had gathered, and Haynes was at once put in a close hack, strongly guarded, and driven to the Court House where he was safely lodged in a cell.

Haynes' Statements Regarding the Murder and His Escape.

Since his capture Haynes has been very communicative to the officers and press reporters. He says he did not intend to kill Robbins and to some, he declares he only struck him because, having determined to escape that night, he thought if he got out without disabling the officer in any way the latter would be censured. He says he struck him a swinging back-handed blow holding the iron mostly covered by his hand and designing only to stun him. The blow did not knock him from the chair and Haynes ran hearing Robbins fall. After he got out he says he went to his house on the Thomaston road, thence to the old church in Thomaston; thence without stopping long through the woods and fields to Blackington's Corner and across to West Camden, then toward Rockport and round into Camden where it was seen and followed as before reported.

He Wants to Plead Guilty.

Early Friday morning he reached a vacant cottage belonging to Mrs. A. S. Rowe of Bangor, half a mile below Northport Camp ground, where he stopped that night. He says he visited friends in Belfast also the following night where he secured supplies and returned, and Sunday night took a boat from the Camp ground and went to Isleboro. He says he intended to go to the Provinces and if he had known Robbins was dead would have been much further off. He declines to tell where he got the revolver and lantern, and says he wants to plead guilty to the charge and go to jail. Haynes appears to have made no attempt at disguise except that his whiskers have been cut off. Haynes stories are not fully credited and it is suspected that he may have met some confederate here Wednesday night after his escape who furnished him with a revolver and lantern. County Attorney Staples has been notified and he and Sheriff Shepherd will arrive to-morrow when Haynes will probably be arraigned and committed for trial.

FROM PORTLAND.

FROM WATERVILLE.

Death of Capt. Roberts.

WATERVILLE, June 17. Capt. Winslow Roberts, of the firm of Roberts & Marston, shank manufacturers, a prominent and respected citizen, died very suddenly this morning. He will probably be buried with Masonic honors.

FORTY-SIXTH CONGRESS First Session.

Senate.

WASHINGTON, D. C., June 17.

The President pro. tem., placed his signature to the Supplemental Judicial Appropriation bill, which now goes to the President for his signature.

The bill to amend the act of 1793 for the enrolling and licensing of vessels, in the coasting trade was taken up.

The bill passed and the Senate took up the Army Appropriation bill and Mr. Withers explained it.

The committee amendments were all concurred in and an amendment by Mr. Carpenter to the 8th section repealing all laws forbidding promotions in the army was adopted.

A conference committee of three was appointed on the Legislative bill. After a long discussion on the clause relating to professorships of the Military Academy, section 5 being the substitute for section 6 of the vetoed bill which prohibits any money appropriated being used to pay expenses of the army used as a police force at the polls, was taken up. After debate between Messrs. Conkling and Voorhees, Mr. Blaine offered substantially the same amendment as that offered by him to section 6 of the vetoed bill providing for the punishment of all persons carrying deadly weapons at the polls. A colloquy followed on the action of Massachusetts troops in Indiana during the war, after which Mr. Withers said he would attempt to secure a vote on the pending bill to-morrow. Adjourned.

House.

Mr. Atkins chairman of the Committee on Appropriations, reported back the Legislative appropriation bill and the Senate amendments thereto with a report recommending concurrence in some and non concurrence in others.

Mr. Conger opposed the bill styling it an infamous political prosecution.

Mr. McLane supported the bill declaring it was a proposition to prevent the spread of political corruption.

The bill finally went over till the morning hour to-morrow.

The House then took up as unfinished business the Senate bill in relation to juries, and Mr. Herbert, of Ala., who has charge of the bill, made an unsuccessful effort to get the Republicans to agree on a plan for disposing of it. He then moved the previous question on the passage of the bill, but the Republicans refused to vote, breaking the quorum. After several roll calls further proceedings under the call were dispensed with. A conference committee was then appointed on the Legislative bill and another attempt made to have action taken on the Jury bill, but after two hours fillibustering the House adjourned without action.

BAYARD CONQUERS.

The Democratic Caucus.

Probable Disposal of the Silver Bill.

WASHINGTON, June 17. The Senate Democratic caucus this morning took no action on Bayard's resignation of the chairmanship of the Finance Committee, but after consuming an hour and a half in debate adjourned until to-morrow. The indications are very clear that his resignation will not be accepted, and that the Silver bill will be left in the hands of the Finance Committee until the next session.

The Speeches Made

After the report on Bayard's attitude had been made by Thurman, McDonald and Garland, Thurman reported that Kernan was alike inflexibly in favor of postponing action on the bill till next winter. Thurman and McDonald after stating the details of their efforts made conciliatory speeches, McDonald taking the ground that the caucus should drop the whole subject of the Silver bill. Garland and Coke took the opposite side and argued acceptance of Bayard's resignation. Gordon replied to Garland and Coke in an eloquent and fervid speech counselling his party friends to take pattern by the Republicans who were always divided on the finance question but were like a phalanx on other questions. Saulsbury and Voorhees followed but the matter finally went over without action.

THE ARMY REUNION.

A GALA DAY AT ALBANY.

ALBANY, June 17. The city presents a picturesque appearance on the occasion of the Army reunion. It is decorated with flags and banners. Along the route of the procession every house is decorated, some very elaborately and tastefully. The procession is very large, many Union officers of distinction being present.

Attorney-General Devens spoke at the army reunion this afternoon. Comrade Paulin of Maine, was appointed on the Committee on Rules and Regulations. A motion to rescind the resolution requiring flags to be at half mast Decoration Day was defeated.

TURKEY.

The Ministerial Crisis.

CONSTANTINOPLE, June 17. Confusion amounting to a crisis prevails in ministerial circles. It is reported that Kheireddin Pacha, Grand Vizier, will resign, and that Said Pacha will assume the Vizierite temporarily, to pave the way for the return to power of Mahommed Nedim, formerly known as a tool of Russia. Layard, the British Ambassador, will endeavor to prevent Mahommed's return. It is also reported that Midhat Pasha will receive permission to come to Constantinople.—Fewad Pasha has denounced Osman's administration at the war office.

NEW YORK STATE.

The Great Hail Storm.

POUGHKEEPSIE, June 17. Further reports of Sunday night's hail storm show it to have been very destructive. In Columbia county $50,000 will not cover the damage to crops.

WASHINGTON.

The Legislative Bill

WASHINGTON June 17. Secretary Sherman has examined the Legislative bill as it passed the Senate and finds no difficulty in construing it and anticipates none in carrying out its provision. This removes the last possibility of a veto and the bill will undoubtedly receive the President's signature when finally passed.

The Judicial Expenses Bill

WASHINGTON, June 17. The Democratic members of the House Appropriation Committee held a conference after adjournment upon a plan of procedure on the Judicial Expenses bill, which was amended and passed in the Senate yesterday. It is stated on authority that the majority will recommend non-concurrence in the second section as amended by the Senate and will submit it in a modified form and ask for a conference committee. There will be a special meeting of the committee to consider the measure, in the morning.

PENNSYLVANIA.

Trouble with the Coal Miners.

MAUCH CHUNK, June 17. Considerable uneasiness exists among the coal miners of this region. At Ebervale, Pardee & Co.'s men have struck and at Stockton. Linderman & Co.'s men are out because they want more money for working in a wet slope. At Audenried the men have not been at work for several days, having asked an increase of wages, which was not allowed.

ENGLAND.

Hanlon's Victory.

LONDON, June 17. The Sportsman says: Hanlon was so confident of the result of the championship match that he prepared the speech beforehand that he delivered from the window of the Newcastle Chronicle office.

THE FALL RIVER STRIKE.

An Evident Weakening.

FALL RIVER, June 17. A circular has been issued to the spinners urging them to stand firm and calling a general meeting of spinners for to-morrow night to ascertain what action has been taken on serving notices and ascertain how they were received. In one corporation quite a large number of spinners have withdrawn their notices and it is said there will be scattering similar action at other mills. The weavers of Robeson mill say they will support the spinners.

CALIFORNIA.

The Republican State Convention.

SAN FRANCISCO, June 17. The Republican State Convention met at Sacramento this afternoon. The candidates most prominently mentioned for the head of the ticket are Gen. Geo. S. Evans, of San Joaquin; Geo. J. Perkins, of San Francisco, and John F. Swift, of San Francisco. Frank Pixley was chosen temporary chairman after a struggle and the convention adjourned till 8 o'clock.

RUSSIA.

Robbed of $1,500,000.

ODESSA, June 17. The Receivers office in Cherson, Southern Russia, was undermined and robbed of a million and a half of rubles—eleven hundred thousand dollars.

STEADMAN IN JAIL. Manly C. Steadman, whose name is [illegible] familiar to our readers [illegible] Dexter correspondent has [illegible] columns an extended and [illegible] report of this man's villainous career, arrived in the city last evening in custody of Deputy Sheriff L. G. Thompson, of Dover and lodged in jail. Quite a number of people were at the depot to get a look at the man, who was easily distinguished by the bracelets on his wrists, and the usual number of small boys followed him up to the jail. Steadman has proved himself to be a heartless villain during his short career. We are informed on excellent authority that he was sent to jail in the Provinces, because he refused to pay for his wedding suit, and when he deserted his wife, four weeks after the birth of his second child, he sold her cow and sheep, presents from her father, and ran away with the money. An interesting report of his arraignment in Foxcroft is given elsewhere.

ST. JOHN'S COMMANDERY, K. T. The arrangements made by St. John's Commandery, of this city, for the trip to Belfast on July 4th, on the occasion of the dedication of the new Masonic Temple in that city have been completed and are such as to assure the Sir Knights and their friends not only a most charming excursion down the Penobscot, but also the utmost comfort and convenience. The new steamer City of Bangor, Captain Barbour, has been chartered for the exclusive use of the Sir Knights and their friends, and will leave this city at 6 o'clock in the morning. The services of Charles H. Buzzell, the caterer, have been secured and a light breakfast will be served on the trip down, consisting of coffee, sandwiches, cake etc. Dinner will be served on board to the ladies and invited guests of the Commandery, the steamer being the headquarters of the party while in Belfast. Supper will also be served to all and the steamer will return after the reception and ball. Sleeping accommodations have been provided and those who take passage on the steamer will, weather permitting, have a beautiful trip. The Commandery will be accompanied by the full Bangor Band, and a large turnout of the Sir Knights will undoubtedly be made on that day. It is probable that a short parade on the return will be made in this city. Everything now indicates a very large attendance of Masons from this section of the State.

Mrs. Ellen Dudley, of Hampden, is the owner of the first piano brought up the Penobscot, it having been purchased for her when a young lady by her father, the late General John Crosby, some seventy years ago. It is still in a good state of preservation, and good for many years more of service.

UNITY AND THORNDIKE ITEMS. A correspondent writes: Potato bugs are numerous and doing much damage.——The new hotel is a fine looking building which adds much to the beauty of our village. Several new buildings and stores have been put up this spring, Harrison Chase is putting up a $900 barn.——Benjamin Hunt sold his stallion to Vassalboro parties for $1000 recently.——Crows and potato bugs are making havoc with the potatoes and corn at Thorndike. Planted crops come up slowly. The grass looks well.——Competition among buyers brought the price of wool up to forty cents last week.

THE ARREST OF HAYNES. In our telegraphic columns this morning will be found the full particulars of the arrest of Haynes, the Rockland murder. When the Katahdin reached her wharf in Camden yesterday, one of the officers stepped off from the boat and heard a man say that he had arrested Haynes, or a man that looked very much like him. He said that he had him tied on board his sloop, a short distance from the wharf, and was told to run along side when the boat started, and bring his prisoner on deck as several persons on the boat knew Haynes and could identify him. As the boat swung away from the wharf the sloop came along side and Haynes, when he heard the men inform his captor that "he was the man," remarked, "I have been telling the d—f—— so all of the way up, but he wouldn't believe me." Those on board the steamer who knew Haynes told his captor that he would do well to make his prisoner secure, and he took their advice.

PENOBSCOT COUNTY CASES.

State vs Charles Dolan et al., Aplts Exceptions overruled.

Rescript—After a verdict it is too late to complain of duplicity in an indictment or complaint and warrant. The objection should be taken by demurrer and at all events before proceeding to trial. It is not good in arrest of judgment. Upon trial of two jointly charged with unlawfully keeping and depositing intoxicating liquors by them intended for unlawful sale in this State, an averment that "the said C. D. and D. H. has been before convicted" &c., (according to the form given in the Statute) may be supported by proof of their conviction severally at different times more than six years before this complaint was instituted. It is not necessary that the previous conviction should be of an offence committed by them jointly. It is the purpose of the provisions in §§ 55 and 57 c 27 R. S., to obviate the merely technical objections that might otherwise be made, upon common law principles, to the allegations and proof of such previous convictions. Accordingly, when it is was alleged in statute form to have been previously convicted and the record produced was of the conviction of D. C. H., Held, that oral evidence of identity was admissible without an averment in the complaint that D. H. was convicted by the name of D. C. H. and that an instruction that if the person before prosecuted should be found to be the same person and should be found guilty of the present offence, the record would authorize a finding of the alleged prior conviction, was correct.

Chas. Winchester vs. F. B. Shaw. Judgment reversed.

Rescript—By an inspection of the items of costs taxed and allowed by the Trial Justice, referred to in the judgment and made a part thereof, the amount is found to be $3 93. Judgment was rendered on default for the debt claimed and for $4 96 costs of suit.

Held, that this was error and that the judgment must be reversed.

A. W. Paine, Com'r, vs. M. M. M. Ins Co. "Appeal dismissed, costs to respondents, Receivers' Report allowed and confirmed."

Rescript—Invoices, bills of lading or protests are not admissible as evidence, in a suit upon an insurance policy, to show the loss sustained by the person insured.

An auditor cannot receive in a hearing before him any but legal evidence.

A BANGOR WOMAN'S GOOD FORTUNE.

We have received a copy of the Leadville, Colorado Chronicle containing the following concerning the good fortune of a Bangor lady: Last July when the great rush to this section began, Mrs. E. E. Sargent and her husband, a barber, left the present capital of Colorado to cast their lot in the Carbonate camp. If fortune favored them, well and good; if not, the loss of what little change they were possessed of could make their financial troubles little less embarrassing. They arrived on July 1 and immediately began to look about for a cover under which they might commence business. Of course they were simply horrified at the prices asked for shelter, and so they constructed a cabin out of sheeting and spread sail on Harrison avenue, between Chestnut and State streets, and in front of this habitation raised signs inviting customers to each of their occupations. In the rear portion Mrs. Sargent carried on the dressmaking business, and in the front her husband plied his trade.

The business of each prospered fairly, and in their spare time the couple with their own hands chopped trees and prepared logs for the erection of a residence on what is now known as Lafayette avenue. When their joint work began to bear them a living and a comfortable income, the husband, a consumptive, died, leaving the wife to fight the battle of life alone, and how well fitted she fortunately was for the work is attested to-day by her possessions. She invested her earnings in the purchase of lots, then very cheap, and in erecting thereon small houses, which were in demand, and at high rates of rent. By this means her invested capital soon came back to her, doubled and quadrupled, and to-day she is the owner of seven houses and lots in various parts of the city. The rent coming to her monthly from these establishments aggregate a very handsome sum, and places the plucky little woman on the highway to wealth. But these several city interests in no way constitute Mrs. Sargent's possessions. She owns a controlling interest in the Mountain Tiger, a very promising property, lying between the Climax and White Quail, and this mine is liable any day to make of her a Bonanza queen.

Mrs. Sargent has been a resident of Colorado for two years, coming here from Bangor, Maine. She is still carrying on the dressmaking business, which has be- [illegible] some large and profitable, besides having a handsome income for her Superintendence of Frankle & Butler's Palace of Fashion, her exquisite taste and skill in this line rendering her an almost invaluable assistant.

ARRAIGNMENT OF STEADMAN.

The Court House Filled.

PLACED UNDER $2,000 BONDS.

Committed to Jail.

FOXCROFT, June 17th, 1879.

Editor Daily Whig and Courier:

Yesterday forenoon it was generally understood to be somewhat doubtful about the preliminary examination of Steadman coming off for a number of days—that is, it was so understood by the crowd on the streets. I understand that the counsel for the defense, for some reason perhaps known to themselves, informed the counsel for State that they were rather inclined to favor an immediate examination. Mr. Lebroke promptly replied that he and his associates were ready. I understand that there were some blank looks about this time, but if the other side wanted an immediate examination, and the other side was ready for it, of course there could be no friction in the matter anyway. But when the train arrived from Bangor, bringing the witness sent for by the prosecution —Mr. James Gildard, of the Parish of Salisbury, New Brunswick, who was an uncle to Steadman's wife, who had known him also for ten years and his wife ever since she was born, who was present at their marriage, and knew that they were married by a clergyman, who was regularly authorized to perform such ceremonies; and when Mr. Frank J. Fogg also arrived from Garland, who knew Steadman for some eight years, knew his wife, knew that they had lived together as husband and wife and were generally understood to be husband and wife and had one child to his knowledge; and when both these gentlemen declared without hesitation and in the most emphatic manner that the Steadman here in custody was the same that they knew in the Province of New Brunswick, the counsel for the prisoner concluded that they would practically waive examination.

THE COURT HOUSE FILLED.

It was arranged that the prisoner should be arraigned at the Court House, in the afternoon, and accordingly the tide of humanity set in that direction at about two o'clock. The room was filled up with just such a crowd as is always looked for on such an occasion. I noticed a few ladies and girls among the rest. At about quarter before three the prisoner was brought into court in custody of Deputy Sheriff Thompson, and of course all eyes were fastened upon him for the time being. I am not familiar with Steadman's particular style when he was on the top of the wave here, but from what I gather I should say that his manner on this occasion was much the same as that shown heretofore. He seemed to regard the crowd before him and occasionally he would indulge in one of his characteristic, sinister sickly smiles. He has a very peculiar countenance and if seen once, it would not be likely to pass from the mind. Surely, his personal appearance would never fill the requirements of an ideal minister of the gospel and disciple of Christ, but I do not exaggerate or misrepresent when I say that his physiognomy is suggestive of State Prisons and Penitentiaries.

WITH A SORT OF AMUSED CURIOSITY,

THE ARRAIGNMENT.

This case was brought before Trial Justice George W. Pratt, of Guilford. J. B. Peaks and A. G. Lebroke appeared for the State; Ephraim Flint and Joseph D. Brown, for prisoner. After the usual buzzing on the part of the counsel, the Court called upon the prisoner to stand up, and then read to him the warrant, which was issued on complaint of Levi O. Farnham. He was arraigned on charge of polygamy, and in answer to the question by Court as to his guilt, he paused a moment, whispered with his counsel and then said, in a distinct though somewhat hesitating manner "I Carlisle M. Steadman, plead not guilty of the charges preferred against me in the warrant." The Court then asked "Are you ready for trial?"—His counsel, Hon. Ephraim Flint replied that they had concluded not to ask for such continuance as would be necessary in order to summon the witnesses for the defence, but to wave examination at present and make such defense as they might be able to do at a higher Court.

THE WITNESSES EXAMINED.

Mr. Peaks here said the prosecution proposed, as having a bearing upon the amount of bail that it might be proper to require, to introduce certain evidence to prove that the man who has been known here as Carlisle M. Steadman is really Manley C. Steadman, who was married to Rachel M. Smith about four years ago in the Parish of Salisbury, New Brunswick, and also to prove his marriage here with Levinia E. Gray. Messrs. James Gildard, Frank J. Fogg, Newell Ober, Henry C. Prentiss and T. L. Jennison, were sworn.

MR. JAMES GILDARD.

Reside in Parish of Salisbury, New Brunswick. Was born in that place. Was formerly well acquainted with M. C. Steadman. Have known him about ten years. He came with his folks from opposite Moncton about ten years ago. His father is called Currie Steadman; I think his name is J. C. Steadman. This man [the prisoner] has a wife there; her name was formerly Rachel Smith. For short her husband used to call her "Rae." I was present at their wedding, at the residence of her father, Benjamin Smith, in the Parish of Salisbury. That was something like 4 years ago; I have not the dates, but the lady told me last Wednesday evening that it would be four years ago the 8th of August coming. Saw the two children then. Mean to say that he (Steadman) has resided in New Brunswick ever since I have known him—Some ten years—until a year ago March, when he left the Province; I think it was then, to the best of my knowledge. Maybe there were a dozen couples present at their marriage. Rev. J. C. Steadman married them. His father is an ordained minister, and very frequently marries people. In a short time they moved to the residence of his father in the Parish of Elgin, Albert County. Have seen them together since their marriage; they have been at my house. Have heard him call her his wife, or Mrs. Steadman. Could not say that I ever heard him speak of the children as his children. I identify the prisoner as the man I have spoken about. If I were as sure of Heaven as I am that he is the man I should be safe.

FRANK J. FOGG.

I reside in Garland, Penobscot County. Was born there. Lived there until September following the month when I was 21 years old, and then went away. Returned after an absence of eight years. Went away in 1869, and returned in April, 1878. During this time was generally employed in Salisbury, N. B., at Pollett River Mills. Knew Steadman while there; he was known as Manly Steadman—think we had his name on our books as Manly C. Steadman. He was employed by the firm of Merriam & Eastman. He hauled logs to the mill and sometimes lumber from the mill. Saw him frequently. About the last of my seeing him, he was preaching; never heard him preach. Have seen him to-day; he is in this court room. That is the man (pointing to the prisoner). I could not be mistaken if I saw him amongst a thousand people. I know that he married Miss Smith. Have been at their house frequently. Have seen them together. Have seen them riding together passing near my place. When they passed by my house, they had a child with them, I am quite positive. This was the winter of '77 or '78. Until recently was not aware they had another child. Am well acquainted with his father, his name is J. C. Steadman. Have heard him called Currie Steadman. He is a minister. Have known him to marry people. Attended a marriage by him shortly before I left.

H. C. PRENTISS.

Reside in Foxcroft. First saw respondent in the Post office. While riding with him, in the town of Foxcroft, he spoke to me of his wife, who he said was then in the Province, of New Brunswick. Said he resided in Nova Scotia—that his wife was in New Brunswick, and a music teacher—a good musician. On the 23d of February, saw Steadman married, at my house. [Counsel here said that they admitted prisoner's marriage with Miss Gray.]

MR. GILDARD.

Re-called testified: Steadman has two children—a boy about three years old, and a very smart little boy too. The little girl is about a year and a half old. The mother and children live with her father—Benjamin Smith. She was as handsome a lady as you will often see before she became heart-broken by her troubles. She was altogether too fine a woman to be treated in the manner that she has been by this man. When Steadman went away, he left no property or means for her support. I saw the lady last Wednesday evening. She said she had no word to send, but she wanted me to come.

THE BAIL.

At this point Mr. Lebroke addressed the court upon the matter of bail. He expounded the law as bearing upon the crime of polygamy, or bigamy, and laid due stress upon the specially aggravated nature of the offence which had, beyond the possibility of a doubt, been committed by the prisoner. He said that all the circumstances of the case called for a bail sufficiently high to secure the presence of the prisoner at the September term of court, and asked that the amount fixed might be as high as $3000.

Mr. Flint counsel for defence said that excessive bail was against the declaration of rights, and that $3000 was excessive bail. Thought if the amount required were a reasonable one, that bail might be procured.

Justice Pratt required that the prisoner secure bonds amounting to $2000, and that, failing to do so, he be committed for trial at the September term of the S. J. Court, at Dover.

On Monday Steadman wrote a long reply to the severe letter which was sent to him by Miss Gray. It was in his usual style of repetition and froth but the substance of it was that he believed that she at heart still had confidence in him and would not have written the letter except at the instance of those by whom she was surrounded and influenced.

Business Items

RIGHT TIME TO OPERATE IN STOCKS.—By recent communication with prominent stock operators, we learn that now is a favorable time to take advantage of the stock market, by the new combination method of Messrs. Lawrence & Co., the New York bankers, who have been so remarkably successful heretofore. This system is founded on correct rules of finance and is universally approved by the shrewdest operators. The orders of thousands of customers are massed into one immense capital, and operated as a great whole, dividing profits pro rata every month. In this way any customer can invest from $10 to $10,000 with equal proportionate success and at the same time gain all the advantages of largest capital and best skill in manipulating the market. This firm's new circular has "two unerring rules for success" and full explanations. $50 will make $250 or 5 per cent; $500 will return $8,000, and so on, according to the market. Stocks and bonds wanted. Deposits received. Apply to Lawrence & Co. Bankers, 57 Exchange Place, New York City.

WILBOR'S COMPOUND OF PURE COD LIVER OIL AND LIME. The advantage of this compound over the plain Oil is, that the nauseating taste of the Oil is entirely removed, and the whole rendered entirely palatable. The offensive taste of the Oil has long acted as a great objection to its use, but in this form the trouble is entirely obviated. A host of certificates might be given here to testify to the excellence and success of "Wilbor's Cod Liver Oil and Lime," but the fact that it is regularly prescribed by the medical faculty is sufficient. For sale by A. B. WILBOR, Chemist, Boston, and by all druggists.

WHEN YOUR HORSE IS LAME and you have tried every remedy without success, and you despair of curing him, and begin to think of trading him off—before doing so, obtain a bottle of Giles' Liniment Iodide of Ammonia, and see its effects in twenty-four hours. These are the kind of cases Dr. Giles likes; where all other remedies fail, his is the one that never disappoints. The doctor will willingly prove and demonstrate what he says, on application to him at his office, 451 6th Avenue, New York. june12 Tu Th&S.

Robinson's Standard Perfumes are recommended to lovers of fine perfumery, as unsurpassed for fragrance, truthfulness to nature and permanency of odor. These Perfumes are prepared with great care from choice and exceedingly costly material, and the large and constantly increasing sales by first-class Druggists is the best proof of the estimation in which they are held by persons of culture and refinement. These elegant perfumes are for sale by Druggists only, in quantities to suit the purchaser. 3m may23

A WISE DEACON. "Deacon Wilder, I want you to tell me how you kept yourself and family so well the past season, when all the rest of us have been sick so much, and have had the doctors running to us so long."

"Bro. Taylor, the answer is very easy. I used Hop Bitters in time and kept my family well and saved large doctor bills. Three dollars' worth of it kept us all well and able to work all the time, and I will warrant it has cost you and most of the neighbors one or two hundred dollars apiece to keep sick the same time. I guess you'll take my medicine hereafter." See other column. june 12 2w

Androscoggin.

The Lewiston Journal says The stone crusher is kept going at a lively gait by Mr Mitchell In two weeks it has chewed up 860 yards of rock There was another extensive blast Saturday night.

The Trustees of Androscoggin County Agricultural Society at their meeting, Saturday arranged the premium list for the next annual exhibition. The list will be published in a short time

The Lewiston Journal says Policeman Stone was thrown from a wagon Friday night, while in pursuit of rum smugglers He stood up in the team to step out, when the horse started suddenly, and he lost his balance and fell. He was jarred badly and will be off duty a day or two.

The Lewiston Journal says The Ivy Day prizes were awarded as follows Handsome man, Farrar, homely man Frisbee, best moustache, Plummer, biggest eater, Woods, base ballist, Hoyt, musician Newton, ladies' man, Deshon, lazy man, Richards, smoker, Parsons, ponyist, Hayes, dig, Heald, popular man, Miss Harris

A very painful accident happened to Mr. Willard Hunnewell of Durham the other day He was employed in cutting poles and had a team at work hauling them from the woods In some manner Mr Hunnewell was thrown down and the team suddenly started The hook of a chain caught in his back and was drawn through the flesh for the whole length of his back The wound was a severe one, and twenty-six stitches were taken by a surgeon in sewing together the flesh His physician says that Mr Hunnewell will recover fully from the accident

The Brunswick Telegraph says "We noticed some weeks since, the pins taken from the bridge recently removed at Lewiston —the old bridge built by Mr Briggs, of Freeport Those pins two inches in diameter of oak, were thoroughly soaked in linseed oil before being driven into the trusses The bridge stood thirty years, and yet nearly every pin taken out was sound though bent and strained in every possible manner White oak pins in the natural state applied to a neighboring bridge were found after years use, so badly decayed as to demand removal."

Cumberland

Saturday afternoon a good looking well dressed young woman, stole $61 from the office of Dr Stanley of Portland, where she had called for medical advice She was arrested, the money recovered, except $6, which she had expended

The statement which first appeared in the Argus and has been copied by many papers both in this State and out of it that the Hon T B Reed was to edit the Portland Press during the absence of Mr Pullen is destitute of foundation Mr Reed does not propose, even temporarily, to abandon the profession of the law for that of journalism

The first race of the season at Presumpscot Park will take place the Forth of July A free for all and 2 40 class, will contest.

Of the improvements this season at Harpswell, the Brunswick Telegraph peaks as follows Dearborn is making quite a change and decided improvement in the Mansion House, in putting up a two stories portico an addition to the western side giving him several new rooms and made a passage way to the Ladies walk. He is also papering and painting the old rooms The Harpswell House further down, to be kept by Mr Merryman the landlord of the last season, is in first rate condition the rooms having been painted and whitewashed, others grained and varnished, and the furniture all put into the best state The house is now open to guests and to those who choose this location for summer the place cannot fail to prove attractive Mr Pinkham, the 3 lord of the Merriconeag House, the lowest upon the Neck, has his house open

Mr Clark Barker, of Portland, severely sprained his shoulder last week while fishing on the Rangely Lakes and was compelled to return to the city at once The sprain though severe will not, his many friends will be glad to learn entail serious consequences

Kennebec

The Waterville Mail says A young man who gave his name as William Young, hired to Mr L A Drummond on Saturday last to work at farm work Mr D entertained him over Sunday and on Monday morning he was missing When it was found that the pocket of another man working for Mr D had been robbed of a small sum of money his employer followed him to this village, where he readily found him, and charged him with the theft He at first denied but finally owned up and surrendered the money Justice Waldron fined him $3 and costs, and he went to jail for want of better security

The Augusta Journal says On Thursday evening there was a brilliant wedding at the house of Hon Lot M Morrill, on Winthrop street the occasion being the marriage of his daughter, Eliza Bradbury Morrill to Joseph E Badger Esq son of W S Badger Esq of the Maine Farmer Mr Williams of Quincy Mass acted in the capacity of groom man and Miss Lottie Morrill as bride maid There was a company from this city, the friends of the parties and among those from out of town may be mentioned Hon A P Morrill Mrs Norton of Readfield Judge Goddard and family of Portland, Mr Dutton and wife of Ellsworth Hon Washington Gilbert and wife of Bath, Mr, and Mrs Jatan of Boston The bridal gifts were numerous and very elegant

The Augusta Journal says A private letter received by a gentleman in this city from a friend in Portsmouth N H, says that the oration on Decoration Day, by John D Myrick, was the most elegant and eloquent address ever delivered in Portsmouth One thousand copies of the paper containing it were printed, and the supply did not equal the demand Of unfavorable criticism there was none whatever

LETTER CARRIERS.

All letters are delivered free by carriers when addressed to street and number. People should inform their correspondents of above and have their letters addressed accordingly

Persons leaving their address at the General Delivery can also have their letters sent, but it is much more convenient to have the street and number on, and they will be delivered earlier than if the same is put on at the office. Carriers make two deliveries daily, the first trip supplying the extremes of their routes.

Collections are made morning and evening in season for important mails—the down town boxes fifteen and the up town boxes thirty minutes before closing mails at the office.

Holidays the Carrier's Window will be open for the delivery of letters from 8½ to 9½ A. M., and from 7½ to 8½ P. M. Sundays from 8½ to 9½ A. M

Any irregularities in the Carriers' department should be reported to the office.

ENVELOPES.

No additional charge will be made for printing the name and request to return, across the left hand upper corner of the envelopes furnished by the Post Office Department, (samples of which may be seen at the Cashier's window,) when ordered in lots of not less than 500.

A request for the return of a letter to the writer, if unclaimed within thirty days, or less, written or printed, with the writer's name, post office and State, across the left end of the envelope, on the face side, will be complied with.

☞ The public are earnestly recommended to procure Stamped envelopes with printed return request, as the expense is less, and letters thus endorsed, if not delivered to the person addressed, are returned to the writer free of charge.

First class envelopes of above furnished at $23 2 per thousand

Stamps cut from Stamped Envelopes cannot be used to prepay postage. The use of such Stamps is punishable by a fine of fifty dollars.

Stamped Envelopes, spoiled in directing, are redeemed at this office.

SCRIBNERS MONTHLY,

CONDUCTED BY J. G. HOLLAND,

The Handsomest Illustrated Magazine in the World.

The American edition of this periodical is now MORE THAN 70,000 MONTHLY,

And it has a larger circulation in England than any other American magazine Every number contains about one hundred and fifty pages, and from fifty to seventy five original wood-cut illustrations

Announcements for 1878--9.

Among the attractions for the coming year are the following

"HAWORTH'S," a serial novel by Mrs Frances Hodgson Burnett, author of "That Lass o' Lowries" The scene of Mrs Burnett's new novel is laid in Lancashire the hero is a young inventor of American birth "Haworth's" is the longest story Mrs Burnett has yet written It will run through twelve numbers of the Monthly, beginning with November, 1878, and will be profusely illustrated

FALCONBERG, a serial novel, by H H Boyesen, author of "Gunnar," "The Man who Lost His Name," &c In this romance, the author graphically describes the peculiarities of Norse immigrant life in a Western Settlement.

A STORY OF NEW ORLEANS, by George W Cable, to be begun on the conclusion of "Falconberg" This story will exhibit the state of society in Creole Louisiana about the years 1803-4 5, the time of the Cession, and a period bearing a remarkable likeness to the present Reconstruction period

PORTRAITS OF AMERICAN POETS This series (begun in August with the portrait of Bryant) will be continued that of Longfellow appearing in November These portraits are drawn from life by Wyatt Eaton and engraved by T Cole They will be printed separately on tinted paper, as frontispieces of four different numbers Illustrated sketches of the lives of the poets will accompany these portraits

STUDIES IN THE SIERRAS,—A series of papers (mostly illustrated) by John Muir, the California naturalist. The most graphic and picturesque and, at the same time exact and trustworthy studies of "The California Alps" that have yet been made The series will sketch the California Passes Lakes, Wind Storms and Forests

A NEW VIEW OF BRAZIL Mr Herbert H Smith, of Cornell University, a companion of the late Prof Hartt, is now in Brazil with Mr J Wells Champney (the artist who accompanied Mr Edward King in his tour through "The Great South") preparing for SCRIBNER a series of papers on the present condition,—the cities rivers and resources of the great empire of South America

THE 'JOHNNY REB' PAPERS, by an "ex Confederate soldier will be among the raciest contributions to Scribner during the coming year They are written and illustrated by Mr Allen C Redwood, of Baltimore The first of the series, "Johnny Reb at Play," appears in the November number

THE LEADING EUROPEAN UNIVERSITIES We are now having prepared, for SCRIBNER, articles on the leading Universities of Europe They will be written by an American College Professor, Mr H H Boyesen of Cornell (author of "Falconberg" etc.) and will include sketches of the leading men in each of the most important Universities of Great Britain and the Continent

Among the additional series of papers to appear may be mentioned those on HOW SHALL WE SPELL (two papers by Prof Lounsbury), THE NEW SOUTH, LAWN PLANTING FOR SMALL PLACES (by Samuel Parsons of Flushing), CANADA OF TO DAY, AMERICAN ART AND ARTISTS AMERICAN ARCHÆOLOGY, MODERN INVENTORS also, Papers of Travel, History, Physical Science, Studies in Literature, Political and Social Science, Stories, Poems, "Topics of the Time," by Dr J G Holland record of New Inventions and Mechanical Improvements, Papers on Education, Decoration, etc. Book Reviews, fresh bits of Wit and Humor, etc, etc, etc

ST. NICHOLAS,

Scribner's Illustrated Magazine FOR GIRLS AND BOYS.

AN IDEAL CHILDREN'S MAGAZINE.

Messrs SCRIBNER & Co, in 1873 began the publication of ST NICHOLAS an Illustrated Magazine for Girls and Boys, with Mrs Mary Mapes Dodge as editor. Five years have passed since the first number was issued, and the magazine has won the highest position. It has a monthly circulation of OVER 50,000 COPIES.

It is published simultaneously in London and New York, and the transatlantic recognition is almost as general and hearty as the American. Although the progress of the magazine has been a steady advance, it has not reached its editor's ideals of best, because her ideal continually outruns it, and the magazine as swiftly follows after. To day ST NICHOLAS stands

Alone in the World of Books:

The New York Tribune has said of it "ST NICHOLAS has reached a higher platform, and commands for its service wider resources in art and letters than any of its predecessors or contemporaries." The London Literary World says "There is no magazine for the young that can be said to equal this choice production of Scribner's press"

Good Things for 1878--9.

The arrangements for literary and art contributions for the new volume—the sixth—are complete, drawing from already favorite sources, as well as from promising new ones. Mr Frank R. Stockton's new serial story for boys,

"A JOLLY FELLOWSHIP,"

Will run through the twelve monthly parts—beginning with the number for November, 1878, the first of the volume,—and will be illustrated by James E. Kelly The story is one of travel and adventure in Florida and the Bahamas For the girls, a continued tale,

"Half a Dozen Housekeepers,"

By Katharine D Smith, with illustrations by Frederick Dielman, begins in the same number, and a fresh serial by Susan Coolidge, entitled "Eyebright," with plenty of pictures, will be commenced early in the volume. There will also be a continued fairy tale called

"Rumpty Dudget's Tower,"

Written by Julian Hawthorne, and illustrated by Alfred Fredericks About the other familiar features of St Nicholas, the editor preserves a good humored silence, content, perhaps, to let her five volumes already issued, prophesy concerning the sixth, in respect to short stories, pictures, poems, humor, instructive sketches, and the lure and lore of "Jack in the Pulpit" the "Very Little Folks" department, and the "Letter box," and "Riddle box"

BOSTON, October 19 1876

R H EDDY, Esq —Dear Sir you procured for me, in 1840, my first patent. Since then you have acted for and advised me in hundreds of cases, and procured many patents, reissues and extensions. I have occasionally employed the best agencies in New York, Philadelphia and Washington, but I still give you almost the whole of my business, in your line, and advise others to employ you. Yours truly, GEORGE DRAPER.
